As part of various initiatives undertaken under the fund, one key initiative is to improve women safety and passenger convenience across public transport undertakings. This initiative includes bringing in an advanced mobile application that can be used by Women commuters to seek remote assistance in case of emergency, tracking movements of women passengers when support is sought by them, putting on-board cameras to monitor on-bus activities, installing panic buttons within busses for women passengers to seek remote assistance in situation of emergency and creating a centralized helpline for providing assistance during distress. BMTC has received funds under Nirbhaya for implementing such women safety measures.

3.3 Current Assignment with Mobile App SI

In an effort to promote safety and convenience in its bus transit system, BMTC has taken up a two-pronged approach:

- BMTC has developed Mobile application with women safety features and a surveillance system. BMTC has installed AIS 140 standard ITS devices, which helps in providing not just feeds to the mobile app but additional richer features to know the location of the bus. Further to this, the surveillance system with the cameras and panic button helps the women to provide an alert to the control room about the occurrence of the incidence. Also, cameras help to know the exact occurrence of incidence along with the ability of recording the incidence. The mobile app will provide a functionality of SOS, which would to be used in case of emergencies. The SOS function will send signals to Sarathi vehicles, which can reach the person by using GPS functionality. Further additional information viz., travel planner, nearby stops, route, fare details etc., are provided in the mobile app.

- BMTC also to increase the footprint of information dissemination to passengers about bus routes, buses available and Expected Time of Arrival (ETA) by covering bus stops that hitherto were not covered under the PIS program of ITS. With this objective, BMTC has installed LED Passenger Information boards at bus stops. The boards will be integrated with BMTC's ITS system which will allow receiving information about the bus availability at the bus stops, location of the bus, ETA, etc. Lower waiting time, especially in the night will help women to minimize their risk of exposure to surrounding unsafe elements.
